

Protective measures against [corona | covid-19]

At Gram Equipment we follow and comply to the Danish Government and other relevant authorities' guidelines on how to behave and conduct business during the Covid-19 pandemic. We have implemented several measures to prevent spreading the virus.

Taking care of our employees

We are to the extent possible taking advantage of the possibility of having our employees working from home and reducing the risk of spreading the virus. Where not possible to work from home we have implemented additional tight hygienic measures and follow the guidelines of the authorities. We are normally a company working globally, but for the time being all our employees traveling has returned to their home countries and will remain there until further notice.

Interaction with customers

We will continue conducting our business as virtual business. This also applies to customers who had planned to visit our facilities making use of virtual based communication platforms. All with the aim to avoid spreading the virus further.

Taking care of business

We keep our operation running and we are continuously in close dialog with our customers, suppliers and other important partners in our supply and logistic chain. We encourage everyone to continue to make use of the virtual communication platforms and other ways to find new and creative solutions. These measures are taken to avoid undue delays, and with the aim of minimizing the risk of further spreading the COVID-19 virus.

We will continuously follow the development of the situation. We are prepared to respond rapidly to any changes and will communicate accordingly to our customers and partners.
